WATCHING AND PRAYING—An interesting history of the town of Livermore Me has been prepared by Ex Governor Washburn of Maine One of the anecdotes of the old settlers told by him is this ' Nezer Dailey (son of Daniel) settled on the west side of the river below the Falls He owned at one time the mills built by Deacon Livermore at Brettun's; sold them and moved on to a farm above North Turner Bridge His son, Warren, lived in the same neighborhood and had a stammering speech which, while it obstructed, gave peculiar effect to his recitals of successes and disasters associated with the 'crow hunts,' to which he gave much of his time His father had a second wife, who for some reason failed to enjoy the devotional exercises of her husband, which were often tedious and always loud, but which she and her step son Warren, were enjoined to attend As soon after Mr Dailey had commenced his morning prayer as was safe his wife would quietly leave the room When this practice was discovered, the husband, to prevent her going out locked the door but the precaution was unavailing, for the wife escaped through the window, When the husband, perceived how completely the old lady had flanked him, his expressions of annoyance and vexation were scarcely in harmony with those which had so lately fallen from his lips nor were they softened by the advice which his son took occasion to give him 'D-daddy' said Warren 'you should w-w-watch as well as pray'

DECORATION DAY AT SACRAMENTO

Decoration Day was celebrated at Sacramento with all the impressive ceremonies appropriate to the occasion The orator of the day was Mr James A Waymire who is well known in Oregon, having been Private Secretary to Governor Gibbs and afterwards a practicing attorney at Salem His address, which is published at length in the Union is one of the handsomest productions of its class that we have ever seen The following extracts show that Mr Waymire did not confine himself to the stale platitudes that usually form the staple of these occasional addresses

It is a happy feature of our form of Government that it affords an ample field for the exercise of all the faculties Human sentiment is not one of the materials out of which legal judgments are constructed It cannot enter the temple of justice for there the blind deity stands with the poised scales which nothing but reason can turn But in the legislative halls where the law and constitution exist expediency as well as the justice of a measure in the pulpit where the sublime truths of Christianity are inculcated without restriction in the free press upon which the people depend so largely for information and counsel and especially in the popular forum where that great controlling power we call public opinion is concentrated and directed to some special purpose sentiment feeling all the hidden springs by which men are moved to action are all [illegible] We can all feel the fires of patriotism enkindle within us when we hear the inspiring strains of some grand national air listen to the eloquence of thoughts that breathe and words that burn or recount the glorious achievements of a favorite hero but not all of us can go with Aristotle, Plato Locke and Bacon into the mysteries of metaphysics or explore with Newton Humboldt Herschell and Agassiz the wonders of nature or follow and appreciate the profound reasoning of a Mansfield or a Marshall Who in all the civilized world is not familiar with the names of Alexander Cæsar Cromwell Washington and Napoleon of Demosthenes, Cicero Pitt and Webster or of Homer Virgil Shakspeare and Schiller? How few, comparatively know anything of the patient men who have devoted their lives to the development and perfection of the arts and sciences to which every one of us is indebted for the comforts of daily life or of their co laborers who have dedicated themselves to the cold logic of the law—that intricate fabric which permeates and sustains all society, and which everybody is presumed to know but which in fact nobody does know A learned judge who has been scores of years a student of legal lore gives days and weeks and even months to the investigation of some knotty question of law affecting vital interests of the public and at length his opinion, clear compact fit to stand as a precedent for all time is announced but it attracts the attention of a small audience only even in the community it most concerns A popular orator in a political campaign or upon the floor of Congress or of Parliament makes a ringing speech mixing sentiment with his logic and instantly his name is upon every body's lips and his words borne upon the numberless wings of the press become the rallying cry of hosts He who wins universal fame deals not with the reason of men only but with some common impulse as well—some feeling or aspiration of the human soul

As in human affairs there are some things that cannot be regulated by statute so in society there are moral powers which do not wait upon the slow processes of reason but upon exigency, move to the accomplishment of their purpose with the swiftness and irresistible force of a tornado There are impulses in the human heart which, when latent perform but a quiet office and are as harmless as a sleeping babe, but once aroused by some wrong real or fancied suddenly become as a raging host If the disturbance affect the public weal these unchained forces transform the thoughtless youth the busy yeoman the tender hearted father, and even the sober philosopher into a brave soldier, ready to endure any hardship to dare any peril or to make any sacrifice for the cause he deems sacred

As he reveres his parents the man who is not an ingrate loves the land of his birth and the place he calls home As his religious faith is something which relates not to this life he claims the privilege of exercising it unquestioned by any man As all men by virtue of their manhood are entitled to equality before the law and as the right to liberty is inalienable these principles are to be maintained at any cost of blood or treasure All these are but sentiments yet so deeply are they interwoven with the ligaments of the freeborn heart that no process of reasoning however, profound can overcome them, even when they are asserted in behalf of others and they of a different race

We may urge the absurdity of allowing the passions or feelings to control the judgment we may declaim against the evils of war and wish for an era when nations like individuals, shall submit their grievances to the arbitrament of law, and we may, perhaps do something to advance that happy consummation, but we cannot forget and we dare not forget, that whatever may be his capacity or his destiny the man of our time is a fighting animal and that war if not his normal condition, as some maintain is at least one in which he is so often found that it is but the part of prudence to improve the opportunities of peace in preparing for war

This day's spontaneous offering of tender flowers and sweet song to the memory of our departed heroes by the good people of Sacramento is evidence enough that any suggestion to them upon this subject is unnecessary May I not though attempt to interpret the sentiments which animate us as we annually gather about the graves of our dead and decorate them with the fragrant emblems of gratitude Let me then first insist that no one shall mistake these deeds for the indications of sectional prejudice or the wish to revive one painful thought of the past Those who sacrificed the pleasures of home and the profits of trade to preserve the Union of the States would be false to themselves should they now do aught to imperil that they have won Does the Christian as he commemorates with bread and wine the sacrifice on Calvary thereby manifest a hatred for the instruments of that sacrifice? Does he not rather recall that great precept of the Master—It is to be the corner stone of all systems of law—and resolve that in the future he will more earnestly strive to obey it "All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you do ye even so to them"

A soldier's heart cannot but be moved [illegible] fallen foe [illegible] One indeed [illegible] they were arrayed against us in the panoply of war He who holds the [illegible] battle [illegible] His hands saw fit to give us the victory [illegible] we hope that it may not yet before many more returns of this sacred day they may feel that it was as much their victory as ours At most they but mistook their duty—[illegible] with the same fidelity and the same interest might also have made Who of us all can claim exemption from the infirmities of human nature? [illegible] they were right [illegible] with the [illegible] of freemen they stood forth in support [illegible] right Let us take the intent for the deed and remembering the virtues and [illegible] there is surely no need of further [illegible] leave them to answer for whatever [illegible] they may have done [illegible] that higher tribunal to which the jurisdiction properly belongs Render to Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's and to God the things that are God's They are now no longer [illegible] fellow citizens friends brothers [illegible] against each other [illegible] are ready in response to the call of a common country—whether in the interest of the South or of the North—to stand together shoulder to shoulder under the broad folds of that dear old flag of their fathers as well as ours—the price of commingled blood—and which we trust is to be the flag of our children and of their children to the remotest generations

Twelve men wintered at the upper camp of [illegible] last winter four white men and twelve Chinamen wintered at the lower camp The season for active mining at the upper camp has only been during the period of the water from the melting snows which has been about six weeks this spring During that time twenty-seven men have been at work at the upper camp Those who have cleaned up their ground numbering thirteen, have averaged from $10 to $12 per day to the man during this six weeks On one occasion four men in four days took out $711. The other thirteen men have their ground yet to clean up and their prospects are quite good The upper camp embraces Hoodoo Gulch Sherman Gulch Seal Gulch Alcohol Tom's Gulch Quartz Creek and Tommie's Creek the latter of which supplies water all the year

The Deer Lodge paper says Mr T P Allen a noted stock buyer of Kansas City Mo is stopping at the Scott House for a few days He came to Montana to purchase cattle with the design of driving and shipping them to the Chicago market He has partially negotiated for several hundred head contingent upon his obtaining 1,000 which is the smallest number he wishes to drive Of these Mr Kohrs has a considerable band Mr Allen is paying $18 to $20 for three year old steers and about $22 50 for four year olds He finds many persons indisposed to sell at those prices although some 3000 head have already been driven from Montana this year only which it is scarcely probable these prices will be net to [illegible] and it is estimated there are still about 17 000 four and five year olds in the Territory which is a heavy surplus over what will be required for home consumption

The Lewiston Signal says Mr Montgomery a stockholder of the N P R R Co and the contractor who built the forty miles reaching Tacoma made a short visit to our town on Thursday last He came for the purpose of seeking information concerning the character and capacity of our section of country for the support of a railroad and expressed himself while here highly pleased with the prospects of this portion of North Idaho north of this place with Whitman and Walla Walla counties of Washington Territory and Umatilla county Oregon as the best grain growing country west of the Rocky Mountains He assured us that the Northern Pacific Railroad would be built that when the furor against railroads had abated in Congress and elsewhere the work would be resumed and progressed with vigor and that the Company would build down the Columbia river instead of across any one of the northern passes of the Cascade

IMPROVEMENT OF THE RIVER

We are glad to be able to note the inauguration by the farmers of the Wallamet Valley of measures to ascertain the probable cost of improving the same so as to facilitate navigation in the summer season. Such an improvement would be of more importance than any other that could possibly be made with the same outlay of money. We have conversed with an engineer who has the reputation of being as thoroughly competent to make such estimate as any in the State, and who is quite familiar with the channel of the river and its obstructions, and his estimate for opening it so it would be navigable to Corvallis all the year round, and to Harrisburg all but about three months, falls below $75,000—no more than the cost of building three miles of railway. And it is further estimated that an expenditure of $150,000, and a subsequent outlay of $25,000 per year would be sufficient to make and keep the stream navigable for good freight boats all the year to Eugene City.

It is not to be expected that appropriations can be obtained to do all this work at once and it is doubtless true that by doing it in parts it will cost somewhat more than if completed in a single season but, compared with the advantages to be derived from it, the requisite amount of money for the improvement is very small indeed, and agitation of the subject should not cease till the attention of the powers that be has been attracted to it and definite action secured. Whether the further investigations proposed will demonstrate the correctness of the estimates above mentioned, or shall prove that they are too small by fifty per cent, there can be no question that the sum required to remove the obstructions and give the farmers the benefit of the navigation of the river is but a trifle of what it would cost to provide any other kind of transportation facilities of equal usefulness to the country.

GOVERNMENT AND THE SCHOOLS

At a recent meeting of the American Social Science Association, President White of Cornell University read a paper on the relations of National and State Government to advanced education, in which he treated of the system of endowment of schools, in a way not the most flattering to American modes of managing such matters.

Starting out with the proposition that there is not in this whole Nation a University that would take high rank among the Universities of Europe, he argues that the prime cause of this is that the educational resources of the country are frittered away upon hundreds of low-grade institutions with high-grade names, instead of being concentrated in the founding of a few truly great Universities. We have the materials with which to build the finest system of schools for the higher education that can be imagined. We have both the vigorous intellects and the resources of wealth to make our country a land of great scholars, but we squander our energies in endowing and sustaining petty institutions in every section of the country. The chief reason for this course, President White thinks, is sectarianism. He is of the opinion that instead of a healthy stimulus, the rivalry of different sects in educational matters is a positive detriment to the cause of learning. In regard to public endowments he argued that it was a legitimate function of both National and State Governments to provide for the establishment of all grades of schools and not less the University than the common school, and that such provision would stimulate private benefactions and result in the building up of institutions that would rival the famous Universities of the Old World.

DON'T LET IT SLEEP

Why do we hear no more of the Portland Dalles & Salt Lake Railway bill? For some time the people of Oregon have not been informed as to the particular state of the case with reference to the prospects of its passage. Two or three weeks ago there appeared to be every reason to believe it was going to be pushed forward to a vote at an early day, and nearly all Oregon was on tip-toe with excitement over the fact. But for some reason which is not explained we have ceased to hear anything about the efforts of our Senators and Representative to secure speedy and favorable action by Congress in the premises.

Our people ought not to allow this important matter to rest where it is. If the stimulus under which, a week or two since, such praiseworthy activity was manifested by all who were supposed to have any power to urge the measure at Washington, has been withdrawn, so that our delegation in Congress feel a less keen interest in the matter, it behooves our people to give the more attention themselves to the subject, and to not allow the zeal of those having the measure in charge to flag for want of encouragement and appreciation at home. This enterprise is one in which every part of Oregon is directly interested. It is conceded upon all hands that the first need of this State is direct communication with the Mississippi valley and the Eastern States. There is no interest in this State that would not be greatly advanced by the opening of such communication and there is no section of the State that would not feel the benefits of the increased population and diversified industries which would speedily follow the completion of such a line of road. Our Senators must not be allowed to forget that this important measure is pending and that the day of the proposed adjournment of Congress is near.

ANOTHER FOR BRISTOW

General Bristow's second step in the reorganization of the Treasury Department is not less praiseworthy than his first. The first thing he did was to give Assistant Secretary Sawyer, of Sanborn steal notoriety, his walking papers, and the next is the dismissal of all the army of loafers and parasites that were carried on the pay roll of the Department without doing any work. Nobody must be paid by the Government except those who render an equivalent in labor, is the principle on which the new Secretary sets out and his plan is the only one consistent with honesty and fidelity in office. There should be no sinecures. If there are peculiar circumstances that commend a person to the especial favor of the country, as in the case of disabled soldiers and the like, let him be pensioned, but let there be no pensioners under other names. And above this let not the political pets of Senators, Cabinet ministers &c be quartered on the Government as a reward for services of doubtful morality rendered by them in promoting the advancement of their patrons. That this has been done and is done to such an extent as almost to make it proper to speak of it as a general custom no one at all familiar with the facts will pretend to deny. The process of lopping off all these fraudulent and bogus officers begun by Bristow should not stop till it has cleaned out the other Departments. There is ample field for its operation outside the Treasury Department though it has been commonly understood that Department had more of it than any other.

There comes a report from Washington county that some of the fall sown wheat in that county is already failing as an effect of the continued rains. It is feared that unless the weather shall come off dry very soon there will be considerable loss from the lodging of grain and some fear that early wheat will not fill out well. But the spring crop will be all the better for the rains. Oats and hay are also represented to be greatly benefited. It is safe to say the loss to the early crops will be small. Matters of this nature are always exaggerated. Every year about this time there are stories of probable failure of crops from too much rain or too little and every year proves how groundless were all such apprehensions. And so it will most likely be this year.

Rumors were rife on the streets yesterday of the removal of W. I. Higgins Superintendent of Construction of the new Custom House. A report was also in circulation that Thomas G Young, U S Marshal had received notice to quit. We were unable to trace these reports to any reliable origin, and are inclined to think they were simply inferences from the energy with which Secretary Bristow goes about the work of weeding out those officers in his Department who are unfit for their places.

The Bulletin quotes Lawson's remarks on the death of the Republican party to prove that the OREGONIAN favored Grover's election but it forgets to mention that in the same number of the OREGONIAN that contained Lawson's letter there was an explicit editorial dissent from the sentiment expressed by Mr Lawson. A convenient memory, truly! But is that a fair mode of discussion?

BILL FOR THE REGULATION OF CONGRESSIONAL ELECTIONS AND PREVENTION OF FRAUDS.—Representative Tremain of New York, reported from the Committee on Judiciary to day in order that it might be printed a bill prescribing certain regulations in relation to the election of Senators Representatives and delegates in Congress. It provides that tally sheets, lists of voters and all other papers cast at an election for Senators Representatives or Delegates in Congress shall be kept by the lawful custodian of the same until after the adjournment of the first session of the Congress next thereafter to be affected by said election. In case of an allegation of fraud by either party to a contest such lists and papers may be produced on proper subpena and shall be carefully examined. Any custodian refusing to keep such papers or to produce them when called for shall be liable to a fine of $1,000 at the suit of the party asking production of the papers. All votes shall be counted at the close of the day of election and if the officers and managers decline to make such count they shall be liable to fine and imprisonment. One section prohibits the sale or gift of vinous malt or spirituous liquors to any voter at an election for Representative or Delegate in Congress and any person violating the provision of this section shall be liable to the punishment of a fine of not less than $200 nor more than $500 and imprisonment for not less than six months nor more than two years. Any use of firearms or threats to use firearms at such election shall also be punished by fine and imprisonment. Any city county, town or parish having fifty voters may have an election precinct established upon petition to the Circuit Judge, if there shall be no precinct within six miles. The bill will be reported for action when the Committee next obtain the floor.—Wash. Cor. May 28.

THE LATE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.—There used to be a saying among New York politicians years ago the substance of which was that if you supported Tammany you might get to be an Alderman; if you fought Tammany they would be willing to send you to Congress to get rid of you. Something of this tendency to compromise seems to be apparent in the treatment of Mr Richardson at Washington. Mr. Richardson has never opposed the Administration—indeed it is difficult to imagine his opposing anything—but he has brought infinite discredit upon it in more ways than we have space just now to enumerate and the Administration recognizing the necessity of getting rid of him is yet determined to make it appear that he goes from choice. In fact, it is so persistent in its notions of letting him down easy that it seems merely a question for him to decide what comfortable berth he will take of the many for which men of twenty times his intellectual weight might sigh in vain. The whole business is preposterous. He is unfit for his post and should be removed. He would be equally unfit or more so, for a foreign mission or a seat on the Bench of the Court of Claims. To put it briefly people are wondering now how he was ever tolerated as a Probate Judge.—N. Y. Tribune.

The following singular case of mistaken identity is vouched for by the New York Times: Pauline Meyer a young and prepossessing Jewish girl complained that a man named Ferdinand Hugel, of No 201 East Fifth street was following her about from place to place and claiming her wages insisting that he was her father. The alleged relationship Pauline strenuously repudiated. Hugel was arrested and was accompanied to court by members of his family. When confronted with the complainant the family resemblance was so striking that his assertions were easily believed. He claimed that Pauline was his second child by his first wife and that she was born in Philadelphia. His statements were corroborated by Pauline's sister who so closely resembled her in appearance that many believed them to be twins. Hugel was discharged. The strange conduct of the girl is unexplained. She stoutly maintained to the last that the accused was in no manner related to her.

THE DUCHESS OF EDINBURGH'S POSITION DEFINED.—A New York dispatch of June 1 says: A London letter says the Duchess of Edinburgh's position at the court has been settled. She is to be called "Her Royal Imperial or Imperial Royal Highness," and will rank next the Princess of Wales except when the Princess Royal, wife of the Crown Prince of Prussia, happens to visit England. The rule has hitherto been that the daughter of the sovereign took precedence of the wives and sons except in the case of the Princess of Wales. The Duchess of Edinburgh, however, is not only royal by marriage, but imperial by birth and it is on this ground that higher place has been assigned her.

A CHINESE COOK.—The Virginia City Enterprise relates the following: A friend of ours was bragging one day of a new Chinaman cook whose services he had the good luck to secure. Everything went beautifully for a week or two till one day he chanced to glance into the kitchen through a crack in the door where John was busy mixing the bread. Before him stood a dish of water from which to moisten the flour. He saw John draw up a mouthful and spurt it into the bread in the same manner as he blows it on the clothes while ironing. The Chinaman has doubtless gone into some hotel kitchen where his services are more fully appreciated.

EMIGRATION AND TRAVEL.—The latest Irish journals tell us that a great increase is visible in the number of emigrants embarking at Queenstown for America. In one week alone over two thousand persons were booked for the steamers leaving for New York and many had to be left behind for want of room. On the other hand it is noted that travel to Europe from America has fallen off fifty per cent as compared with last year. This is accounted for by the panic and the absence of any great international exhibition on the Continent. Another reason is the unusual number of distinguished men in this country with which the year opened and which had the effect of deterring many people from the fingers of these.—N. Y. Herald May 29.

DIRTY INVESTIGATION.—The somewhat notorious James H. Lane is traveling over the State of Kansas soliciting names for a petition asking for the withdrawal of the suit against ex-State Senator York, for the alleged bribery of State Senator York. The petition has thus far showed as proof that public opinion in Kansas has vindicated Mr Pomeroy by refusing to believe the charges against him.

SOUTH CAROLINA OFFICIALS SENTENCED.—A Charleston dispatch of May 28th says: The three County Commissioners of Cromwell convicted of corruption have been sentenced respectively to ten years, to nine years and to thirteen months in the Penitentiary.

FOR THE BEST OF REASONS.—Congressman J. M. Wilson, of Indiana, announces that he will not be a candidate for re-election. The Indianapolis Sentinel says his constituents knew that he wouldn't when he took his share of the back pay.

TUESDAY MORNING JUNE 9 1874

CITY.

RAILROAD ACCIDENT.—As the southern bound evening express was approaching the [illegible] just north of J street Last [illegible] the locomotive jumped the track leaving the baggage car and coach standing upon [illegible]. It was found impossible to right the engine for at least two hours so the [passengers] were run back to the depot. The train [illegible] from the south stopped at the L street crossing where the passengers got out [illegible] on the Stark street ferry. The mails and express was discharged at this point and brought over to the city by the ferry. The passengers baggage and express from the delayed train were conveyed to their destination on the cars which had come from the south leaving soon after [illegible]. The damage to the engine which had jumped the track was very slight. In less than two hours the disabled locomotive was once more on the rails and ready to do service. The delay was rather annoying to those living at the [illegible] end of the line.

A TIDAL SERPENT.—A few days ago a large drift came down the Columbia river and [illegible] at the mouth of Pearcy's slough lodged against the piles which were driven across the slough as a breakwater. An effort was made to release the drift by the men engaged in constructing the breakwater. While doing so one of the men discovered a very large rattlesnake coiled up on a log. True to reptile instincts, the snake no sooner perceived its natural and inveterate foe than it gave an ominous rattle, protruded its forked tongue and made vigorous preparations to defend itself. Arming himself with a stout club the [illegible] quickly dispatched the hideous reptile before a second strike, and threw the repulsive [illegible] into the flood. The drift came from a point a long ways up the river—probably the Willamette—and the snake was on the [illegible] the time it was detached or, being [illegible] down on the current had crawled up on the floating mass.

PRESENTATION.—Last Saturday evening, a few minutes before the final adjournment of the Grand Royal Arch Chapter, Mr T McF Patton was presented with an elegant gold headed cane. J R Bayley, Grand High Priest, made the presentation speech, to which the recipient responded in fitting terms. The cane is a most superb one. The body is of [illegible] polished to the highest degree and mounted with a solid gold head beautifully and elaborately chased and bearing the following inscription: Presented by the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of Oregon to T McF Patton Chairman of Committee on Foreign Correspondence, June 6, 1874. A handsome piece of gold bearing quartz is set in the top portion of the head, which contributes much to the beauty and elegant appearance of the cane. Altogether it is a very handsome present, and one of which even a prince should be proud.

FINE STOCK FOR OREGON.—In the Chicago [illegible] of the 20th ult we notice an account of a sale of valuable horses at Waukegan Ill on the day previous. S G Reed Esq, who was present in person or by his agent secured some of them which will doubtless be brought to this State. He purchased [illegible] head as follows: Springfield Maid, [illegible] at $380; Maynard, bay stallion, [illegible]; Woodburn, black stallion, at $460; [illegible] gray filly at $300; Olean bay [illegible] at $335; Troy brown stallion, at $335; [illegible] bay filly, at $215. The attendance was very large, buyers being in attendance from nearly every State in the Union, and the [illegible] Provinces. In all there were 65 horses sold, bringing nearly $10,000. [illegible] Kidds, of Lexington, Ky, acted as auctioneer.

FOURTH OF JULY.—This national holiday, [illegible] will not be celebrated by the citizens [illegible] with the usual and time-honored [illegible]—music, procession, oration fire [illegible]. No preparations as yet have been [illegible] in this direction and we presume none [illegible] made. In view of this event Messrs. [illegible] Ludwig lessees of the East Portland [illegible] propose to throw that place open on the [illegible]. Two bands of music will be engaged for the occasion. The exercises will consist of an out door concert—dancing, games [illegible]. In the evening there will be a grand display of fire works. Full and complete particulars will be given in a few days.

OSWEGO IRON WORKS.—The evening cotemporary says: Some time since we mentioned that the hearth of the Oswego Iron Works had been burnt out and that the company was consequently compelled to blow out the furnace and suspend operations until a new hearth could be received from New York. A telegram from New York informs the officers of the Company that they may look for their materials to arrive within two weeks and by the 1st proximo the furnace will be again in full blast.

EMBEZZLEMENT.—Yesterday morning Sheriff [illegible], of Washington county, arrived here having in custody a man named Hoffman convicted of the crime of embezzlement of funds which belonged to a district school. Hoffman was lodged in the city jail a few hours, until the express train left for Salem when he was placed on board and taken to the Penitentiary.

COYOTE WOLVES.—Mr T A Wood of the [illegible] Museum, received a few days ago three coyote wolves which were captured [illegible] in Linn county. These animals are [illegible] the museum. Two of these wolves [illegible] to parties who intend to take them to England for purposes of exhibition. [illegible] is undecided as to what disposition [illegible] made of the third wolf.

In the matter of the petition for the relocation of road from the Portland and Milwaukie macadamized road near the White House to the south line of the county intersecting the road from Oswego, in Clackamas county; report of viewers reporting favorably on said petition read in open court second time, and road ordered established.

AMUSEMENTS.

For the inevitable "blue Monday" and a cold rainy evening besides Oro Fino Theater was well filled last evening. A capital bill was rendered in good style and with very satisfactory effect. "Irish Emigrant" a two act comic drama was presented first. An interlude followed in which the favorite balladist Miss Morgan appeared and sang with charming grace several songs which won two encores. The evening's entertainment concluded with the "Bonnie Fish Wife." Read the theatrical advertisement elsewhere. An excellent programme this evening.

Elsewhere appears a "correspondence," the exact purport of which requires no explanation at our hand. It simply means that a number of the prominent citizens of Portland desiring to express to Madame F M Phelps their thorough appreciation of her endeavor to provide the public with a superior class of dramatic performances, and at the same time their regret that in consequence of various local circumstances the efforts thus far made have failed to meet with deserved patronage have tendered that accomplished and talented lady a grand complimentary benefit. The recipient has accepted the courteous offer and in response to the correspondence designates Friday evening as the one on which the benefit will take place. That the proposed benefit will be an overwhelming testimonial of the esteem and appreciation in which Mrs Phelps is held by this public we feel fully assured. The recipient has been too long and favorably identified with the stage here and elsewhere to require laudation at our hands. Besides the prominent and influential gentlemen whose names are appended to the correspondence, who have taken the matter in hand is a sufficient guarantee that the benefit will be successful and substantial. We are assured that there are many persons in Portland who have never witnessed the excellent performances given at Oro Fino Theater by the Phelps troupe and who are consequently ignorant of the merits of the company. If such persons—and there are many of them—could be induced to come to the theater even once we are certain they would feel constrained to patronize the only legitimate place of amusement now within their reach. For the night on which the benefit will be taken a stunning bill will be presented which cannot fail to please the most fastidious and reflect credit on all concerned. Theater goers we are certain will not neglect to show their appreciation of a true artiste in her persistent efforts under discouraging circumstances, to maintain a place of amusement. Remember Friday evening, and do not fail to attend and at the same time bring your friends along. Programme will be timely announced.

TUESDAY MORNING, JUNE 9, 1874

ABOUT SUICIDES.

In the New York News' Paris letter we find some startling statements in regard to the prevalance of the crime of suicide. Here is an extract:

During the past few days the question of suicide has occupied considerable space in the columns of the press. Never was this crime so common as it is to-day. It is said to put the average of suicide for the year in the city of Paris alone at three per diem. Age, condition in life, education, culture, riches or poverty, nothing seems to limit this strange thirst for self-destruction. About a hundred years ago, in the year 1784, a writer said that "all France had felt a sort of stupor mingled with consternation and shame on learning that in the short space of eighteen months four persons had committed felo de se," and one of them an ancient Minister. We are now far removed from that serene epoch. An ancient Minister has just committed suicide—for the friends of M. Boule now confess that he killed himself—and there have been about four suicides a day throughout the entire winter. During the Summer there are fewer cases, but three a day is not an exaggerated estimate for the year round. In denouncing suicide and in calling it cowardice all classes are agreed. Even the Radicals, with all their strange ideas about the end of man and civil burials, are orthodox upon the question of suicide, and none of them will admit that Robespierre attempted to take his own life. When found insensible, with his jaw fractured and his life's blood gradually oozing away, it was claimed that he had been shot by a gendarme. Volumes have been written to prove that Robespierre did not fire a bullet into his own head. During the revolution, however, they were not at all scrupulous about suicide, and besides Robespierre a number of prominent men made the attempt with more or less success.

SUICIDAL EPOCHS.

Contrary to the usual opinion, it is not in unhappy moments alone that suicides are the most common, but it is generally during moments of change from great prosperity to misery. Men endure the struggles of poverty better than the sudden deprivation of accustomed pleasure and enjoyments. This subject was very well treated by Plutarch in his Life of Anthony. The friends of Cleopatra had founded a society the sole objects of which were pleasures in every form and fashion. The translation of the name of this society is "Those Who Die Together." No one was admitted who did not swear to die voluntarily and gayly with other members of the club when the hour was voted by the majority. When their amusements were exhausted, when satiety came, they took their own lives tranquilly, as if they believed in their hearts that pleasure was the sole aim of life. Suicide is a pagan crime, and the moderns who have excused it have been nothing but pagans lost in the midst of Christian society. But the men who have defended suicide have been the last to use it. On the other hand, J. J. Rosseau, who affected to be the organ of the poorer classes, and who wrote a memorable tirade against suicide, died by his own hand. Christians who believe and who practice their belief do not commit suicide, and if the Christian religion had no other merit it would be worth preserving for this reason. Yet there are Christians who recite their pater and credo, who shudder at the idea of suicide, but who do not hesitate to approve the deed, a complication of homicide and suicide: one risks his own life and risks taking the life of another.

REMEDIES.

In the presence of the general mania for self-destruction it is evident that something should be done, but what that something is it is difficult to say. It appears evident that if suicide was less frequent in other times, that was not because it was punished, but because the moral and social conditions of life were different. Then the body of a suicide was exposed to the public, and people were invited to insult it and to follow it with their maledictions. The idea of such a spectacle may have checked the hand of many, just as the idea of lying exposed in the morgue may check many to-day; but any human penalties executable after death cannot have a certain effect. It is now assumed that the idea of suicide has been fortified by modern romances and by the scenes of self-destruction given upon the stage. And as a majority of suicides are due to an inordinate vanity, or amour propre, it is thought that something may be done by refusing every suicide the publicity so many seek. An effort is now being made to get the journals to ignore every case of suicide, and never to mention the crime when it can be avoided. Moral maladies are contagious, and in dissimulating the epidemic it is pretty certainly diminished. But public interest demands a speedy inquiry into this subject and the formation of a special committee formed of legislators, doctors, journalists, and members of the Police organization. Until we have ascertained the main causes of this mania it is difficult to apply a remedy.

CAR VENTILATION.

A small party of railroad and scientific men made a special trip between Boston and Springfield, Mass., a few days ago, for the purpose of testing a new and somewhat novel mode of car ventilation. The arrangement is an application of the fan system according to the following plan: Upon the centre of the axle-tree of one of the trucks is securely fastened a driving pulley, 22½ inches in diameter; from the driving pulley runs a small triangular belt 1½ inches wide, over another pulley 4½ inches in diameter, attached to a fan made of galvanized sheet-iron, upon a steel shaft. This constitutes the entire mechanical adjustment for putting in motion the required supply of air.

Ordinary car wheels are 33 inches in diameter, or 8.64 feet in circumference; hence in passing over a mile of track the wheels will make 611 revolutions, and the size of the pulleys being as one to five, the fan will revolve 3,065 times; that is, when the train moves at, say, one-third of a mile per minute, or twenty miles per hour, the fan revolves at about 1,000 per minute, or 1,500 at thirty miles per hour. To conduct the air, which has been excited and put in motion by the centrifugal force of the fan, to the top of the car, and to distribute the same evenly, the fan is surrounded by an elongated sheathing of wood, which may be seen under the car, and which is continued by a tin conducting tube through the closet to the distributing pipes, which in turn emit the air into the car. This sheathing being air tight, the fan is, so to speak, hermetically sealed, and none of the outside air can get to it or feed it except that which passes through the air chamber. Now since all the air which finds its way into the air-chamber must pass through fine screens, which are inserted in place of the window glass, the dust and cinders must be left outside of the car.

The experiment Tuesday was very satisfactory. A small quantity of cologne was placed in the air chamber, and the odor was immediately perceived in every part of the car. The same effect was observed when smoke was made in the air chamber, which found its way at once in a uniform diffusion in the car. The air was then shut off, and the car was filled with a dense cloud of smoke; upon admitting air the smoke was principally removed in three minutes, and in six minutes the car was entirely clear. Notwithstanding the large amount of air taken into the car there was no dust from the roadbed nor cinders from the engines.—N. Y. Times.

A REBUKE TO THE THUNDERER.—The hitherto infallible Court column of the London Times has just received a stinging rebuke, which will go far to impair its prestige. It stated recently in that formal and florid phraseology which used so to delight Mr. Thackeray that he once had thoughts of lying in wait about the building to see the person who prepared the Court Circular—that the true and obvious cause of the absence of the Duchess of Edinburgh from the last drawing room was that Her Royal Highness had hope of an event which would add to her happiness and that of the Duke of Edinburgh, and the announcement of which would cause general joy in the Kingdom. [illegible] smiled somewhat at the clubs, and [illegible] upon the wedding [illegible] saying with Horatio [illegible] Lord [illegible] followed hard upon [illegible] the next morning there was still greater [illegible] when the Times announced by request [illegible] the authoritative and courtly paragraph [illegible] day before had been printed without the knowledge or authorization of the Duke of Edinburgh. By whose then? is the next question, an order as yet unanswered. [illegible] has been no piece of Court gossip [illegible] during [illegible] and we cannot but admire the [illegible] and propriety of an official press which [illegible] contrast with that o[illegible] —*N. Wheat in Liverpool [illegible] from San Francisco [illegible] for average Cal [illegible] club.

The demand [illegible] has never very [illegible] this [illegible] the year [illegible] spring [illegible] already in [illegible] way and the requirements for moving the [illegible] not yet [illegible] the latter [illegible] will [illegible] drawing considerable sums from the ordinary channels of trade as well as from the surplus capital of the country, but [illegible] will hardly be as [illegible] in the autumn of 18[illegible] and 18[illegible]. While the requirement will probably be as large or larger for this purpose than in either of the years named, the surplus money in the country is much greater than it was at the beginning of those harvest years. The [illegible] amount of a Savings Bank in our city, which has been noticed elsewhere, will supply a want which has been felt heretofore. The savings departments of the other banks in our city have already been patronized to an extent which shows a strong disposition on the part of our people to encourage such institutions, and the new one starts out with omens of success.

While it is known that it will probably be impossible that Congress will take action on the currency question at the present session, there is still much speculation in our eastern exchanges concerning the Senate bill upon which a Conference Committee is now deliberating, most of which is directed against its inflation features, which seem to be about as objectionable as were those of the bill vetoed by the President. The New York Herald thinks the redemption of the currency which it proposes is an unmitigated sham, and that no sensible man can doubt that so wild and insane a measure will encounter a new veto if it should ever reach the President. The Herald further says: "If the absurd bill we have been exposing passes the House, the President's negative will protect the country from its mischievous operation; but what a satire it will be upon American legislation for Congress to adjourn leaving the currency in the same condition in which it found it at the beginning of the session. It was the universal cry of the country, when Congress assembled in December, that legislation on the currency was the great duty of the session. The mountain has labored and will have brought forth—nothing."

Miscellaneous.

The present rate of tonnage for wheat vessels from San Francisco to England is reported at 70@[illegible].

The total value in gold of the exports from the United States for the year ending December 31st is placed at $[illegible]. Wheat is nearly 25 per cent of the amount, cotton 40 per cent, and treasure 10 per cent.

The National Crop Reporter says of the outlook for wheat east of the Rocky mountains: Returns dated May 15th indicate the present prospects, especially of spring wheat, to be flattering. Generally speaking this is true of winter wheat, although there are from some localities complaints of damages resulting from the bad weather.

The San Francisco Call says: There will shortly be a demand for all surplus funds for moving the immense wheat crop now about ready for the harvest. In the meantime money is obtainable on good security at 1 per cent per month at the commercial banks and at 9@12 per cent per annum at the savings banks.

The export demand for trade dollars last month was considerably in excess of the capacity of the mint to supply. There is quite as much work on one of these coins as on a double eagle, and hence the same labor and time employed in turning out $4,000,000 of the latter coin would be required for $200,000 in trade dollars. During the month of May the mint at San Francisco was employed almost exclusively on trade dollars to meet the urgent export demand, turning out $[illegible] 000, equal to $7,[illegible] 000 in double eagles. There were also 10,000 dimes coined in the same month. The shipment of trade dollars last month was the largest yet made, amounting to $635,400. The first shipment of this coin was made in April, 1873, aggregating only $700. Up to the close of 1873, the amount shipped was $[illegible] 100. There was no steamer to China in January this year, and hence no shipment. The amount shipped in February was $27[illegible] 000, in March, $182,500, in April $500,800, and in May $635,400—making a grand total, in round numbers, of $2,000,000 in less than one year. This coinage has opened up a new demand for Nevada silver.

Transportation.

The Committee on Transportation appointed by Congress winter before last has submitted a report, which has been printed. It is a voluminous document, containing about 1,000 pages of closely printed matter. In their report, the committee show that California and Oregon are advancing rapidly in wealth and commerce. The exports to foreign countries from California, Oregon and Washington Territory in 1873 were as follows:

Breadstuffs	$20,123,[illegible] 74
Gold and Silver Coin and Bullion	14,[illegible] 575
All other articles	3,[illegible]

According to our annual statistics of foreign commerce for the year 1873, it appears that San Francisco was the third city of the Union in the value of domestic exports, New York being first and New Orleans second. It also appears that San Francisco was the third city in the value of imports, New York being first and Boston second. In 1873 the exports amounted to 18,2[illegible] bushels. The amount comprising [illegible] per cent of the entire exports of wheat from the United States to foreign countries. It is estimated that the exports of wheat from Oregon during the year 1874 will amount to nearly 3,000,000 bushels, an increase of about 1,000,000 since 1872. Oregon and Washington Territory also produced immense quantities of lumber and wood, which are becoming an important article of commerce in all the Pacific States. The committee especially urge upon Congress the improvement of the Columbia and Wallamet rivers.
